

NCPD Webinar on Access in Catholic Education, Part II: High School

Transition Resources

NCPD's February 16, 2010 webinar, Part 2 in a series on Catholic Education, will focus on High Schools. Click here for information on the webinar content and speakers, and find other resources.

An area that we would like to highlight in this webinar is "Transition services for youth, as it corresponds to our webinar, Access in Catholic Education for Students with Disabilities: Part II, High Schools.

Regarding this topic the following linked government web site states, "Transition is a process of planning to help youth develop life skills and have real life experiences so they can become successful, contributing members of society. Transition planning relates not only to post high school goals, but includes the many years of planning and working toward meaningful goals including employment. There are many government agencies and organizations that can help young people plan for the transition from school to postsecondary education or work, as well as resources for parents and educators." Click here to be taken to the transition planning section of disability.gov.

The topics covered under this area are;

- Transition from High School to Postsecondary Education
- Transition from School to Work
- Resources for Parents
- Resources for Students
- Resources for Educators

Access in Catholic Education for Students with Special Needs, Part II: High School; Webinar Feb. 2010

May be freely reprinted. Please credit NCPD.

Distributed by

www.ncpd.org